2. The Applicant's argument filed 3/29/05 have been fully considered but they are moot in view of new ground of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 18 -25, 27-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gabe [US Patent 6,029,165] in view of Leighton et al. [US 2003/0191822].

As to claim 1, Gabe discloses a distributed interactive content system to enable interactive content exchange, the system comprising:

a server configured to generate content associated with one or more fields of interest, the server further configured to enable reception and transmission of information related to one or more fields of interest, the server accessible by a plurality of users and a host [Fig. 5, shows a lexicon that stores topics for a community of group (server) the topics are of interest to the user of the community group, accessed and retrieved by the users via a community module 31 (host) (col. 4, lines 34-35, col. 6, lines 34-46)], wherein said content is accessible and modifiable by the plurality users from a host that said content is substantially uniform for the plurality users and a host [user create her own topic (modify content) (col. 6, lines 63-67), col. 10, lines 19-32), the access able content belong to at least one community 32 which defines a group of users with common interest and common vocabulary (col. 6, lines 35-43) i.e. the topics modified by the users are topics of a group of users with common interest and a common vocabulary and is substantially uniform for the users and the community module 31(host) that access the topics].

Gabe does not disclose plurality of hosts.

Leighton discloses a distributed information retrieval system where clients access server system 35 from plurality of ISP (host) to access web pages (content) (col. 3, [0037] fig. 3] in order to serve web content efficiently, effectively, and reliably to end users (col. 1, [0012]) and speed up the delivery of the web content [col. 1, last line- col. 2, first line).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use Leighton's teachings to modify the system of Gabe by using a plurality of hosts to access a distributed web content on a server system in order to server web content efficiently, effectively and reliably to end users and speed up the delivery of the web content.

As to claim 19, Leighton further discloses wherein the server includes a distributed network of computing devices [col. 1, lines [0013].

As to claim 20, Gabe further discloses comprising a unitary content database included in the server, the unitary content database adapted to receive, store, and organize information related to the one or more fields of interest [Fig. 5, item 36, database 36 as show in fig 3 stores unitary content related to one or more subjects of interest for example the topic "capital" of interest to community users].

As to claim 21, Gabe further disclose further comprising a plurality of subject databases organized within the unitary content database, the plurality of subject databases configured for the receipt, storage, and organization of information related to one or more of the one or more fields of interest [Fig. 3, unitary content 36 stores at plurality of topics in a subject database 32. Fig. 5 shows plurality of subject databases 32].

As to claim 22, Gabe further disclose wherein the plurality of subject databases are supplied with the information related to the one or more fields of interest by the plurality of users [content is supplied to databases by user that create their own topic (col. 6, lines 63-67)].

As to claim 23, Gabe further disclose wherein the plurality of subject databases are supplied with the information related to the one or more fields of interest by the plurality of hosts [content is supplied to database by users (col. 6, lines 63-67) via a community modules 31 (host) . Leghton discloses the use of plurality of ISP (host) for interaction between users and a server system (Fig. 3) and the system of Gable in view of Leigh supplies information to the database by plurality o hosts].

As to claim 24, Leighton further discloses comprising means for exchanging information between the server and the plurality of users via the plurality of hosts [Fig. 3, clients ISP (hosts) and server system 35 exchange information via ISP's (hosts)].

As to claim 25, Gabe further disclose wherein the server further includes a website and mini-page development system (col. 4, lines 48-50, col.6, lines 63-67), wherein the website and mini-page development sub-system is configured to enable one or more of the plurality of users to view summary information of an object associated with a list, wherein the list is defined by one or more of the plurality of hosts (col. 10, lines 27-36).

As to claim 27, Gabe further discloses wherein the server is configured to manipulate, organize and store the information for retrieval by the plurality of users through the plurality of hosts such that the unitary content database can be queried for particular information to generate a unique database of content accessible by the plurality of users through the plurality of hosts (figs. 3 & 5, col. 6, lines 33-45).

As to claim 28, Gabe further discloses both Leighton (col. 1, [0013] and Gabe [content is stored in internal and external databases (col. 7, lines 29-32) wherein portions of the content are storable in a distributed manner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 26 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over by Gabe [US Patent 6,029,165] in view of Leighton et al. [US 2003/0191822] as applied to claim 18 above and further in view of in view of Drucker et al. [US Patent 6,292,796].

As to claim 26, Leighton further discloses means to couple the server to the plurality of hosts (fig. 3).

Neither Gabe nor Leighton further discloses wherein said means to couple includes wireless interfaces.

Drucker discloses a method and apparatus for improving access information by using filters to identify the sources of information of interest to the user (col. 4, lines 1-26). The interface could be a wireless interface.

Art Unit: 2142

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use Drucker's teachings to modify the combined system of Gabe and Leighton by using a wireless interface to improve access to information of interests to the user interested in.

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

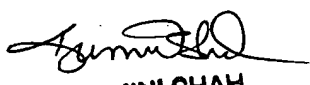

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
